FEBRUARY 1977

From the GM's desk

The question of a power increase for WRUW has been considered periodically ever since the station went on the air in February, 1967. Yet, hand and hand with this overriding concern for the technical quality of the signal offered to our audience, has been the deeper philosophical commitment to the unique creative potential of non-commercial broadcasting.

It has been emphasized that WRUW offers the possibility of new and diverse kinds of programming not readily available in the commercial media. Yet, this kind of approach to radio requires an incredible commitment of time and energy from those who wish to offer something of quality and interest. To get students to commit large portions of time that could be spent in their individual studies, has always been a challenge because many persons, even within University Circle, have trouble trying to receive our signal.

With our application for 1000 watts, many of these problems will be resolved. It is clear that the Administration of CWRU, the licensees of WRUW-FM, are strongly committed to providing a radio station that can serve the unique needs of the University community as well as benefiting the city of Cleveland.

WRUW has always been committed to offering something more to its listening audience, especially with music programming. Now, with an anticipated increase to 1000 watts, we look forward, in the next decade, to providing programming that will further accentuate the intellectual and cultural environment that University Circle offers.

The Case Western Reserve University Trustees have approved an application by WRUW-FM to raise our power from 10 watts to 1000 watts. The application is now waiting to be considered by the Federal Communication Commission.

The increased power will be accompanied by the installation of a new antenna. The total effect of these improvements will be to greatly increase the station's area of coverage, as well as improving the quality of the air signal recieved by listeners within the present listening area.

Blues and other strangers

Lovers of the blues, as well as curious neophytes and people who are just plain bored with rock bands, should know that the Mr. Stress Blues Band will soon be marking its fifth year of residence at the cozy Brick Cottage, 11423 Euclid, just east of Ford Drive. The Stress band consists of five fine musicians, led by the venerable Bill Miller, who wields one of the wickedest blues harps this side of Chicago. They've been kicking up a regular fuss every Friday and Saturday night since shortly after the compact Brick adopted its live music policy.

The show generally gets underway around 10 p.m., but get there early if you want a seat. The dance floor is postage stamp size, but the aisles are available, and the ambience is loose and funky. In fact, the Brick is one of the few places left on the Circle where all kinds of people can mingle--black, white, old, young, student and non-student--for a relaxed good time without having to shell out a lot of cash (there's no cover and drinks are cheap).

And then there's the music; where else in town can you hear Stress' patented blend of big-city in the paying-more-and-getting-less dept., "the biz" wants to increase list prices for lps to $7.98 (the "star is born" sound track and new Queen already), claiming increased costs for pvc (polyvinylchloride, impress your friends). believe what you want. any true vinyl junkie can tell you how bad the quality of recent pressings is.

did you know that tape used in 8-tracks/cassettes (prerecorded) is the poorest quality our who-loves-ya, baby "biz" can buy? persistent rumour of the demise of the 8-track, and no one has figured how to clean all that oxide from the internals of the machines (that's why your 8-track playback develops a voracious appetite after extensive use).

style blues, funky jazz, good ol' rock and roll, plus a few other things--and a little comedy tossed in for good measure? The band is solid--the piano player and drummer have been with Stress from the beginning ten years ago--and their material provides an object lesson in modern applied blesology.

The frivolity goes on until 2 a.m. If you don't mind being squeezed for elbow room and inhaling other people's cigarette smoke, the Brick remains one of the best entertainment bargains on University Circle.

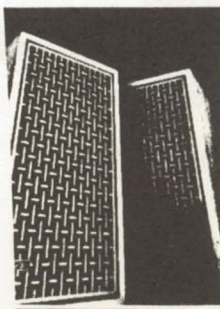

Given this opportunity, we musn't fail to mention the other prime blues scene in the area. On Sunday and Monday nights, Jimmy Ley and the Coosa River Band hold forth in the Mistake, the basement club below the Agora, the renowned Cleveland State hangout on E. 24th St. just north of Chester. While the Mistake lacks the intimacy of the Brick, there's plenty of room to dance, the price is right, and Ley is a fine musician and performer. His band also currently features Chuck Drazdik, a former Stress associate and one of the best guitarists to grace Cleveland stages in recent years.

Sitters and listeners, of course, can get a regular weekly taste of the blues and blues-related music on Walkin' Dr. Bill's Blue Monday show on WRUW, every Monday night from 7 to 10, where yours truly is also known to spin a few sides.

As I am sure you have noticed, the Program Guide has been expanded, both in size and in content. In an effort to better serve our listening audience, we will continue to expand and improve the Program Guide in the future. If you have any suggestions or requests for material you would like to see included, please write to me, c/o WRUW.

I would like to remind you all of our special programming on February 26, our 10th Anniversary; don't miss it.

One more note. In our move to raise our power to 1000 watts, we will be needing to purchase new equipment for our transmitter and antenna. Any help and support you, our listenership, could give up would be greatly appreciated.
